'Mosquitos' get teens to buzz off

Controversial security device touted as alternative way of dealing with graffiti, vandalism and loitering often associated with youth

'Click' went the Mosquito, powering up. Then, suddenly an unholy screeching sound pierced the air.

Photographer Stacy Lee, 24, scrunched up her face. "It actually felt like my eardrums dying," she said. Sharon Hearst, 58, heard nothing but the click. Her dog Yuki, on the other hand, perked up instantly.

The crucial difference between Lee and Hearst? Thirty-four years.

The Mosquito, an electronic "teen deterrent" is being used across Canada to reduce problematic or criminal behaviour by emitting a high-frequency noise that its manufacturer claims is only audible to young people up to the age of about 25. Age-related hearing loss (presbycusis) means that most adults are unaffected.

It would certainly deter Paul Keodprom, 34 — even though he's nearly a decade over the target age for the device's "teen" setting. "It's gross," said Keodprom. "You can feel it more than you can hear it."

"It's almost more invasive than the adult one.... The adult one's just so in-your-face, but the teen one's just in the back of your ear. It's more subtle but ... more needling."
PAUL KEODPROM, 34, OF THE 'TEEN' SETTING

While critics have suggested the device is discriminatory and may infringe on young people's human rights, Michael Gibson thinks a little annoyance can go a long way.

Gibson is the president of Moving Sound Technologies, which owns the rights to sell the Mosquito in the North American market. He said the company has sold more than 3,000 units at a base price of $1,100 apiece. Mosquitos have been installed in Guelph, Kitchener, Cambridge and Barrie, said Gibson. Toronto is one of the only major centres in Canada that has not adopted the technology to some extent, he said.

In the meantime, resourceful teenagers have been using the technology to their advantage. By downloading a "mosquito" ringtone to their cellular devices they have been able to circumvent the rules against cellphone use in class. Assuming, of course, their teachers are over 25.

Fire chief refusing to heed warning

Toronto's fire chief is adamant he shouldn't lose one firefighter, despite a warning that if council protects fire and police budgets it would deepen looming cuts to libraries and other so-called soft services.

"I do not support any recommendation to make cuts to Toronto fire," said Bill Stewart on Thursday, adding he has told City Manager Joe Pennachetti as much in a confidential report.

"My call volume is up 30 per cent since amalgamation and my staffing is negative three (positions), so fire (spending) is not the issue here."

His remarks came a day after Pennachetti told the Toronto Star that, if council doesn't hold police and fire to the same 10 per cent budget cut he's demanding from other departments "it will be worse for the other services that Torontonians said for the past two weeks are dear to their hearts."

He was referring to hundreds of deputations at City Hall from Torontonians opposed to cuts suggested by consultant KPMG.

Torn after disabled son's death

Mother told to 'shut up' and back away as police tackled her son to the ground He died in hospital

Frantic that she may have torn up one of her photos of her dead son in a haze of grief, Ann McGillivary rifled through one of her drawers on Thursday morning looking for it.

"I don't think I have it," she said, sighing and shaking her head from side to side. "And I don't have nothing right now, because he's dead."

Ann's son, Charles McGillivary, collapsed and died while being arrested by police at the corner of Christie and Bloor streets on Monday night.

Because of a childhood accident, he couldn't speak.

The six-foot-tall McGillivary loved barbecue-flavoured chips and ice cream, even during the winter. He was a little boy living inside the body of a burly 46-year-old man.

He communicated with his mother, Ann, using sign language and a handful of words only she could understand.

"I told (the police) he can't answer you. He's mentally retarded. He can't speak. He can't answer you. He uses signs."
ANN MCGILLIVARY

Police tackled and arrested him, according to eyewitness accounts, but it's still not clear why.

The Special Investigations Unit, which has launched an investigation, said in a news release that police officers were conducting an investigation in the neighbourhood before McGillivary's arrest.

The release said McGillivary collapsed after a "physical interaction" during the arrest.

The SIU did not respond to a request for an interview. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Putting girls in the picture

CONTRIBUTED/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Toronto photographer Petra Collins was chosen as one of two photographers for the soon-to-be-launched website and magazine Rookie, co-founded by 15-year-old American fashion blogger Tavi Gevinson.

Petra Collins has clicked with the international art world with her provocative photos of teenagers

The fact that Toronto photographer Petra Collins recently graduated from high school seems to have blessed her with a special insight into her subjects.

The 18-year-old's work centres mostly on teenage girls in soft lighting and nostalgic settings. Her photos have been featured in Vice, Complex and Jacques magazines, which Collins wasn't legally allowed to purchase at the time her work was published, owing to their mature content. (She was 17 when she submitted the photos.)

Collins says her photographs are a direct and honest reflection of her young age. "This is like a time where I'm coming of age and I'm learning everything and it comes through in my photos," she says.

Collins studied photography in high school, but much of what she's learned about the art world has come from immersing herself in it.

On top of her solo work, she founded and curates the international all-girl photography collective The Ardorous, which has its first exhibition this month in Toronto.

She starts classes at the Ontario College of Art and Design next month but suspects her booming career will conflict with her schedule.

"I'm hoping to be able to get more jobs," she said. "I hope I can keep doing it and sustain myself by doing it and making it into a career." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cigar merchant takes stand in impaired driving trial

A Cuban cigar executive admits he drank at least four ounces of 45-proof Cuban rum shortly before his minivan struck a Toronto cyclist, but says he did not feel impaired.

Jose Lugo-Alonso, 61, president of Havana House Cigars and Tobacco Merchants, took the stand in his defence Thursday.

"I was not concerned because I was feeling fine and I did not notice any symptoms," he testified through a Spanish interpreter.

The accident in July 2008 left cyclist William Crawford, 57, partially blind and hearing impaired, forcing him to give up his civil service job.

Lugo-Alonso has pleaded not guilty to impaired-driving charges.

The married father of two testified he was visiting a friend when the friend insisted they share a drink. Later that night, Lugo-Alonso got in his Toyota Sienna minivan to drive back to his apartment near Bay Street and Queens Quay West. He said he never saw the cyclist before the collision on Lower Jarvis Street.

"I assumed I had hit something because I saw something hitting the front glass of my vehicle, but I wasn't sure," he said.

Kids win spot to skateboard

- Group of sympathetic parents took boys' request to local council
- Led to approval of a $15,000 PowerPlay grant from Hydro One

Shane Blakely and Ben Jeffs are zipping along the shoulder of a busy two-lane highway on their scooters.

Aside from Shane's driveway, where they've built makeshift ramps, the 12-year-olds have nowhere to ride their wheels in the rural hamlet of Hampton, just north of Bowmanville.

But they're changing all that.

In an initiative that's won praise from politicians, police and parents, the two boys and a 14-year-old friend have mobilized their community to build a park where local kids can ride scooters, bicycles and skateboards.

"It's fantastic that we have kids willing to step up and work for a cause they believe in, and reach that goal," said Const. David Swaine, a youth officer with Durham Region police who's working with them to find a safe, suitable location.

It's been a lot of work, the boys admit. But these things "don't just happen," Ben said.

First, cycling pal Monty Wheller got signatures from more than 150 friends, neighbours and teachers. Then, with a little help from Shane's mom, Melanie Blakely, they wrote a letter to the community association asking for support.

A group of parents got on board and took the boys' request to Clarington council, where sympathetic ears led to approval of a $15,000 PowerPlay grant from Hydro One in support of children's activities.

Now the boys are busily raising the remaining $10,000 needed to build the skateboard park.

Last month, Clarington Mayor Adrian Foster presented the proud trio with a mock cheque for the Hydro One grant, holding the boys up as an example of what can happen when young people get involved in their community.

The friends still have hurdles ahead, asking local businesses for donations and organizing a barbecue or car wash to raise funds.

"We're determined we can do it," says Shane, mentally calculating how many cars they need to wash at $5 a pop.

Cheating the truth — too bad for you if it's nothing but lies

If you do by chance find yourself wrongly accused on Cheaterville.com, don't expect the website to take the post down.

Founder James McGibney says they don't play judge or jury.

"We don't decide whether we believe that someone's telling the truth about an alleged cheater or not," he said.

According to Internet and defamation lawyer Gil Zvulony, if the accusations are both false and damaging, it could become a libel suit. But suing the website might not get you very far. While the defamation laws in Canada are different from the U.S., Zvulony says the legalities aren't clear.

"My concern is that a lot of innocent people's lives are going to be hurt by this website, and a lot of marriages are going to break up and a lot of kids are going to have divorced parents because some idiot went on this website. The law as it stands today leaves a lot of loopholes for people to get away with this kind of thing."
GIL ZVULONY, INTERNET AND DEFAMATION LAWYER

"It's certain in the U.S. they're immune from liability, its uncertain in Canada," he said. "The law is completely different here, it's sort of uncharted territory. The law is not clear where websites may be liable or not."

While McGibney says the premise of the site is to help warn people before starting a relationship with a potential heartbreaker or sociopath, Zvulony says there could be a lot of repercussions to those that are falsely accused in such a public venue. PHOEBE HO

It ain't just your cheatin' heart that will tell on you

Cheaterville.com allows anonymous posts about infidelity including full names and photos

MARIANA IONOVA
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

For those with an itch to cheat, there's a new reason to think twice before sneaking around. Unless you want to risk being outed online.

Cheaterville.com, a U.S.-based website that made its way to Canada last month, allows anonymous users to post stories accusing friends, enemies, coworkers, ex-lovers and acquaintances of infidelity. The site currently has about 10,000 profiles of alleged cheaters, which include full name, age, hometown, marital status, photos and other information. The infidelity stories are not verified but that doesn't worry founder and CEO James McGibney.

"We're here for the people who have been cheated on, not the cheaters. I don't care about the cheaters."
JAMES MCGIBNEY, FOUNDER AND CEO

"There's lots of things on the Internet and not everything is validated. At the end of the day, it's up to the person who's reading the post to determine whether it's true or not," said McGibney, noting that the site is moderated and posts with nude photos, personal phone numbers or credit card information are not allowed.

METRO

McGibney launched the site on Valentine's Day in Las Vegas and it has been gaining popularity since then.

A former U.S. marine, McGibney says he decided to start Cheaterville.com after a fellow marine found out his wife had been cheating on him during his deployment. Less than six months later, the site gets about 250,000 hits on a slow day and McGibney hopes that, soon, it will reach a solid five million weekly hits.

Critics, however, argue the site provides angry exes with an outlet to spread false information, ruin careers and break up families.

One Canadian listed on Cheaterville.com, who wished to remain unnamed, denied the accusations and said the site has no business publicizing private matters. The allegations could cause their family enormous distress and ruin their professional reputation, the accused added.

But McGibney said he is not concerned about protecting the reputations of cheaters or worrying whether a cheater's employer will discover their indiscretions and fire them.

"You absolutely get what you deserve. In my opinion, it serves them right if something like that happens to them."

Facing poverty, poor health

Every day, more than 25,000 girls under the age of 18 are married worldwide, rights groups estimate.

For many child brides, a future of poverty, exploitation and poor health awaits. Some key facts on child marriage around the world:

• The practice affects a third of girls — and some boys — in developing countries, according to UNICEF, which describes child marriage as "perhaps the most prevalent form of sexual abuse and exploitation of girls."

• Child rights activists say marriage at a young age violates a child's basic human rights because they are too young to be able to give "free and full consent" — a right enshrined in Article 16 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

The babies of child brides are 60 per cent more likely to die before the age of one than children of women older than 19.

• Girl brides are more likely to be infected with the HIV virus by their older husbands. A study in Kenya and Zambia by University of Chicago researchers found that among 15- to 19-year-old girls who are sexually active, being married increased their chances of having HIV by more than 75 per cent.

• A girl bride is more likely to be beaten or raped by her husband and experience abusive relationships with her in-laws.

‘Horrific’ injuries await world’s child brides

A girl under the age of 18 is married every three seconds That’s 10 million each year — often without consent and to a much older man

“Nobody wants a woman who passes stools all the time and smells,” whispered Farhiya Mohamed Farah, explaining why her husband divorced her when she was pregnant with their second child.

After giving birth to her first child at age 18 while fleeing gunfire in Somalia, Farah developed a hole between her vagina and rectum, causing feces to leak from her body,

“People would ask ‘who is making that bad smell,’ coughing and covering their noses. So I was always isolating myself,” she said.

The condition, known as fistula, affects two million women around the world, mostly in Africa, according to the World Health Organization.

Fistula was virtually eradicated in developed countries in the 19th century, following the discovery of caesarean section.

Horrific childbirth injuries are just some of the devastating consequences of child marriage.

Child marriage, which steals the innocence of millions of girls worldwide and often condemns them to lives of poverty, ignorance and poor health, is one of the biggest obstacles to development, rights groups say.

“Rarely do those poor, uneducated rural women have a voice to stand up and say: ‘No, I want to go to hospital.’”

AGNES ODHIAMBO, A WOMEN’S RIGHTS RESEARCHER WITH HUMAN RIGHTS WATCH

A girl under the age of 18 is married every three seconds, often without her consent and sometimes to a much older man, according to the children’s charity Plan UK. Most of those marriages take place in Africa, the Middle East or South Asia.

Girls aged 15 to 19 are twice as likely to die in pregnancy or childbirth than women aged 20 to 24, according to the United Nations.

“Pregnancy at an early age is a huge risk factor for obstructed labour, as a girl’s body has not fully matured and the pelvis is small,” said Kate de Rivero of the Women and Health Alliance, a charity working to improve maternal health. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Human rights

- The UN Convention on the Rights of the Child considers marriage before the age of 18 a human rights violation.

Hope for future denied

A survey of nine African countries by the UN Population Fund in 2003 found that most fistula patients were poor, uneducated teenagers who developed a fistula while giving birth to their first child.

Some were as young as 12.

Girls forced into early marriage rarely continue their education, denying them any hope of independence, the ability to earn a livelihood or of making an economic contribution to their households.

The practice also reinforces the concept of girls as worthless burdens on their families to be jettisoned as soon as possible.

Canada battling invasion of 'flash robs'

Mass thefts arranged through social media and text arrive in country Fashioned after flash mob trend

Close to midnight on a hot summer's night in July, the Quickie convenience store in Ottawa's west end was virtually empty.

The next minute, 40 or so youth descended en masse. As they marched in they grabbed everything in sight.

The next minute, like a well-oiled machine, the mob left with $800 worth of goods.

Some were laughing, others had their heads down, and others looked directly into the security cameras, oddly defiant.

Behind them was a single photographer or videographer, holding his camera and looking oddly out of place.

And then the store employee followed seconds later, shaking his head in disbelief.

It was reportedly Canada's first "flash rob." The phenomenon has been steadily occurring in many U.S. cities — Washington, D.C., Philadelphia and Las Vegas among them.

In Chicago, North Face and Filene's were victims. In Washington, Victoria's Secret endured a 20-second raid that police believe was organized on social media. In Philadelphia, 100 teens attacked a group of pedestrians near a downtown subway station in what was described as a flash mob. In Las Vegas, 35 people robbed a convenience store.

Like flash mobs, the participants are alerted of the criminal activity through social media or texting. But instead of gathering to sing en masse or hold a demonstration, they invade a store en masse.

U.S. observers see the trend as a sign of how Facebook and Twitter may be changing or reshaping criminal behaviour.

Often the flash robs are videotaped and the exploits are posted on YouTube, part of the appeal, social observers suggest.

Myth surrounds wealth of Chilean miners

One of the myths surrounding the 33 miners rescued after being trapped for 69 days deep inside a Chilean copper mine is that they're all millionaires and no longer need to work.

The truth is nearly half have been unemployed since their mine collapsed one year ago Friday.

They have filed negligence lawsuits demanding $10 million from the bankrupt mine's owners and $17 million from the government, but years remain before any payout.

Susan Morgan has been "living every parent's nightmare" since her only boy was accidentally run over and killed by his good friend — the son of former Newfoundland premier Brian Tobin.

"Our sorrow at his loss is endless," Morgan said in a victim impact statement Thursday as Jack Tobin sat stone faced awaiting his fate at the hands of a provincial court judge.

"It was such a violent and unexpected death."

Tobin pleaded guilty in May to impaired driving causing death after Alex Zolpis was pinned beneath a pickup truck.

Brian Tobin sat at his son's side as the defence lawyer told a sentencing hearing about the qualities of the young Tobin's character and his "privileged" family upbringing.

Norman Boxall described the 24-year-old Tobin as a "courageous, kind and generous person."

Outside of the incident that killed his friend, Boxall said Tobin is considered by those who know him as a "responsible person." Prosecutors are seeking a five-year prison sentence and 10-year driving ban.

Morgan said she is a pediatrician who sees children daily as part of her job. Their youthful faces make "every day at work ... a struggle in grief," she said.

Her daughter and her son's former girlfriend both sobbed while the statements were read, and each had difficulty keeping their composure as they gave their own.

GM OSHAWA PLANT

$117M to build new Cadillac

General Motors said Thursday it will invest $117 million to prepare its assembly plant in Oshawa to build the new Cadillac XTS next year.

The automaker said that the move will create or save 400 jobs on the flexible assembly line in Oshawa.

The Oshawa assembly plant has had major changes in the last year, with new vehicle models and expanded production that has added two new shifts and 1,300 jobs.

The Oshawa plant builds many GM models — from the Impala and Camaro to the Chevrolet Equinox and Buick Regal — and employs more than 4,500 people.

The Cadillac XTS is being designed to compete against other luxury car brands, a highly competitive market. Production is planned to start in the first half of 2012.

The announcement "delighted" Canadian Auto Workers president Ken Lewenza, although he was less certain it would add jobs at the plant in the short term.

Stocks in free fall on worries over economy

TSX down more than 8% below where it began the trading year

JIN LEE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Concerned-looking traders on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange watch stocks sink on Thursday.

Nagging doubt about the precipitous state of the U.S. economy abruptly turned to fear Thursday as investors scrambled for the exits amid the prospect of a serious downturn that suddenly seems more real.

The S&P/TSX plunged 436 points to 12,380, its biggest one-day decline since June 2009. South of the border, the Dow Jones industrial average took the brunt of the blow, falling 512 points to 11,383 — its biggest fall in three years.

Most ominous about the selloff, however, was its pervasiveness. Oil dropped by more than $5 US a barrel, helping to carve nearly two full cents off the value of the Canadian dollar.

The frenzied trading Thursday reminded observers of the wild swings that defined the markets during the financial crisis three years ago that sparked the recession.

"It has now become completely about the economy.... The evidence (suggests) there is now the risk of a serious economic slowdown."

SID MOKHTARI, MARKET TECHNICIAN
CIBC WORLD MARKETS

Gold, a traditional haven, was briefly the day's only bright spot, touching a new high of $1,684.90 US an ounce, before falling back to finish the day at $1,659.

Investor concerns about a fishtailing U.S. economy have slowly been borne out in recent weeks by a barrage of economic data — weak manufacturing numbers, declining consumer spending and slower job hires — that points unequivocally towards another slowdown.

So dramatic has been the flight to safety — investors choosing to simply stockpile cash — that the Bank of New York said Thursday it would begin charging some clients to hold large sums of money.

WestJet says its profit tripled

WestJet second-quarter profits more than tripled as higher fares and cost controls helped offset increased fuel prices, the Western Canada-based airline said Thursday.

Revenues were up 21.4 per cent at $742.3 million.

Air Canada eyes fare hikes to offset fuel costs

ANDREW VAUGHAN/ THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Air Canada has narrowed its losses to $46 million.

Air Canada will continue its attempt to raise fares and seek fuel surcharges where possible in the coming months as it tries to absorb elevated costs that threaten profitability.

Fuel costs surged by 40 per cent from a year ago and are expected to add about $800 million to the airline's operating expenses this year.

Air Canada and rival WestJet have implemented price increases to offset the higher costs and take advantage of improved consumer confidence in Canada.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Department of Transportation has fined Air Canada $50,000 US for violating "deceptive price advertising" rules in ads on its websites that didn't disclose taxes and fees tacked onto advertised fares.

Worth mentioning

JERRY LEWIS. Comedian Jerry Lewis and the Muscular Dystrophy Association aren't saying why they're fully parting ways after 45 years and raising more than $1 billion for the non-profit through its annual telethon.

But the 85-year-old comedian told reporters last week that he plans to hold a press conference the day after this year's telethon to talk about what he thinks is important.

When pressed by a reporter about his role with the telethon, Lewis said: "It's none of your business."

The association announced Wednesday that Lewis was no longer its national chairman and he would not appear on the telethon this year.

In May, Lewis said in a statement issued through the association that he would make his final appearance on the telethon this year and sing You'll Never Walk Alone during a six-hour primetime broadcast scheduled for Sept. 4.

When asked what he'd have to do to be satisfied with his life, Lewis said: "Get the cure for muscular dystrophy, then I'm fine."

WEIRD NEWS

You don't need to get a bee in your bonnet, but ...

It was a traffic accident with an added sting.

RCMP officers had to close an Alberta highway Thursday after a truck carrying honey bees rolled into the ditch.

Mounties say the contents of 104 hives spilled onto both sides of the two-lane road southeast of Edmonton.

Police say the accident happened when one of the truck's wheels dropped over the highway's shoulder into the ditch. The flatbed rolled onto its side and skidded several hundred metres when the driver over-corrected in his attempt to get the wheel back on the road.

The owner of the bees arrived on the scene and advised the fire department to spray a mixture of water and foam. RCMP say that killed a lot of the buzzers and brought the situation down to a "manageable level."

The owner also arranged for several of his workers to help clean up. The surviving hives were loaded into two separate vehicles and taken back to their home.

The escapees are European honey bees, which aren't nearly as aggressive as potentially deadly African honey bees, which are known to pursue, swarm and sting. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Apes remake lacks soul

Rise of the Planet of the Apes is full of action, but loses the camp appeal of the original ◗ Crouse and Breslin concur: this classic was better left untouched

Richard: Mark, I love Planet of the Apes. I've seen the original and the sequels countless times but I don't think Rise will find its way to my Blu ray shelf. I liked the action and some of the monkey business was very cool, but honestly, I wish they would have kept their stinking hands off my beloved damn dirty apes.

MB: Yes, Richard, one tinkers with a masterpiece at one's own peril. And I can't help but miss the elements that made the original franchise so great, mostly the heavy-handed irony, satiric wit, and that the apes talked!!! These apes are just too real, grunting away like a bunch of...apes. Although, even the CGI isn't perfect. In some shots, Caesar, the lead ape, looks like an overgrown Beanie Baby.

RC: I thought Andy Serkis's performance-capture work as alpha ape Ceasar was both one of the movie's strengths and weaknesses. No doubt his facial expressions, particularly the use of his eyes, add much to the character but the computer generated imagery used to bring Caesar to life, while often impressive, lacks an organic feel. The Roddy McDowell era apes were obviously fake — sometimes painfully so — but somehow they had more soul.

MB: I don't know about you, but I found the story — Science Experiment Gone Awry! — cheesy and derivative, but I did enjoy Caesar's antics in James Franco's house, which were pure kinetic poetry. But I suspect the entire movie exists for the last 20 minutes when the apes run amok in San Francisco. Genuinely thrilling, for me. Did you think Franco is really the reason to see the movie?

RC: No, I don't think Franco or Freida Pinto are reason enough to see the movie. It's all about the monkey business. When the revolution begins the movie kicks into gear and becomes the movie the trailers promised. Some of the action is a bit too showy — since when can apes do martial arts? — but the scene of Caesar on horseback leading the charge against the heavily fortified cops is a real crowd pleaser but for my money it took WAY too long to get to the good stuff.

MB: There's also a lot of hack work in the minor roles: John Lithgow's saintly Alzheimer's patient, the angry next door neighbour, and worst of all, Franco's boss at the research facility — a cardboard villain out of a much cruddier film. The apes had more depth, although perhaps that's the point of the movie.

Blige gets personal with The Help

Singer's soundtrack contribution is about moving forward She's doing that by testing her acting chops

DEBBIE LYNN ELIAS
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

While she's lent her musical talents to films before, Grammy-winning singer Mary J. Blige wanted the Living Proof, her contribution to The Help, to be more than a mere soundtrack listing.

Based on Kathryn Stockett's best-selling novel of the same name, the Help captures the essence of 1960s Jackson, Miss., chronicling the relationships between three very different women who come together around a secret writing project that puts them all at risk.

"I saw a screening of the movie twice," Blige explains.

"At each screening I had my Blackberry and I would write down each time something would make me cry and I would write down when I laughed. By the time we got to the studio, the song was almost written."

And while the song intertwines thematically with the film, it's still an intensely personal piece for Blige. "It means everything to me," she says of the tune. "It means I know exactly where I'm going. I know what lies ahead for me. I know that my journey continues because it's been so rough here that to have any life, I have to have the courage to keep moving."

And moving forward is something Blige excels at, starting with moving from music into acting. Having already made several television and film appearances, most recently in Tyler Perry's I Can Do Bad All By Myself, Blige is currently shooting Rock of Ages.

Describing her casting in the Broadway smash-turned-movie as "a blessing," Blige plays Justice, "a gentlemen's club owner — a very nice strip club owner," she says.

"I have to be the light in a dark place. Normally the person that's always the most bubbly person is the person with the most problems. The person is always smiling. So, that's who Justice is. And that's basically my part. Of course there's singing. I sing and I act."

Blige is taking her new career seriously, working with an acting coach to hone her skills. "I'm improving," she says modestly.

While she says music has given her great confidence in life, "acting is just the opposite. It says to me, 'You've got a lot of work to do. You're blinking. You're stuttering. Keep working on that. Keep working on your confidence.'"

And where does she hope that growing confidence will take her? Ideally into a Steven Spielberg film. "If he ever does a huge movie, I would love for him to call Mary J. Blige to be one of the African-Americans in the film," she says. "That's a big deal."

Tatiana de Rosnay turned her obsession with the history of apartments into a bestselling book and film

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Author Tatiana de Rosnay's bestseller Sarah's Key uses an American journalist's curiosity about her own apartment to shed light on a shameful moment in French history, the 1942 Vel' d'Hiv roundup in Paris, during which French police rounded up and arrested Jewish families. With the novel having been turned into a film starring Kristen Scott Thomas, de Rosnay sat down with Metro to discuss the what walls remember, writing in different languages and keeping Harvey Weinstein happy.

This deals with a piece of history audiences might not be familiar with. How is it to educate people in a way?

For me it was not a "holocaust novel" — although it is called that, and this is called a "holocaust movie." When I wrote it, I absolutely did not have the intention of making it into a lesson. Ironically, now though, it's a book that's read in schools.

This was your first book in English?

Published, yes, but not really, in the sense that when I started to write books, I was 11 years old and that was in English, and everything I wrote between the ages of 11 and 25 are in English. I wrote about 15 books which are never to be published because they're very bad — this sort of science-fiction stuff, detective novels, love stories. I would hate that to be published.

Is there any difference to the experiences of writing in English versus French?

I grew up learning both languages at the same time. My father's French and my mother's English. I speak English to my son and French to my daughter, for some strange reason. It's actually very difficult for me to analyze why I write books in French or in English. All I know is that I wrote Sarah's Key in English because I had to put myself into my English side to write about that event in French history.

The history of apartments, what lives have been lived there, seems such fertile ground for storytelling.

All my books have that, every single book that I've written. It's one of my favourite obsessions, how walls remember. I'm sure some shrink would have some brilliant interpretation of why this obsesses me so much. I probably don't want to find out why because if I do I'll probably tamper with all the internal mechanisms that make my imagination spring forward. My poor husband, whenever we're looking for a house or an apartment, he says things like, "How much is the rent?" and "Is there a garage?" And I'm like, "What happened here? Did somebody commit suicide here? Was somebody murdered here?"

How was the adaptation process?

Well it went really well. [Screenwriter] Serge [Joncour] happens to be a very good friend of mine, so I felt immediately at ease and a sort of trustworthy atmosphere. And frankly I wouldn't have come all the way from Paris, France on this exhausting movie tour to tell you that I didn't like it.

Critics slam Oprah's Oscar

Academy defends honorary award for philanthropic work Detractors say Winfrey's domain is TV, not film

Film academy president Tom Sherak is coming to Oprah Winfrey's defence.

Sherak says Winfrey is "one of the most philanthropic performers in the world" and thus deserving of the academy's Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences voted Tuesday night to present Winfrey with an Oscar statuette at the annual Governors Awards in November. James Earl Jones and makeup artist Dick Smith will also receive honorary Oscars at the private ceremony.

Blogs have been abuzz with criticism over the selection of Winfrey for the award since the announcement was made late Tuesday.

In an article published Wednesday, Los Angeles Times columnist Patrick Goldstein calls the academy decision "a bonehead-ed move."

"This is about a person who has come from the depths, risen to the heights and given back."
FILM ACADEMY PRESIDENT TOM SHERAK ON OPRAH WINFREY

"Winfrey has done good work in the world, but that's not enough to merit an Oscar," he writes.

Sherak says the Hersholt Award recognizes an individual who "exemplifies giving back to the community, the world, society in an extraordinary way."

"Oprah has given and given and given," he said, adding that she has contributed more than $500 million of her own money to charitable causes. "She's a member of the academy, she was nominated for an Academy Award and she has produced movies. This is not about personality. This is about a person who has come from the depths, risen to the heights and given back. That's a perfect example of why this award was created."

The Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award was established shortly after the death of the actor in 1956. Previous winners include Bob Hope, Frank Sinatra, Paul Newman, Elizabeth Taylor, Quincy Jones and Jerry Lewis.

The award is presented periodically when the academy's board of governors believes there is a worthy recipient, Sherak said.

Goldstein and Deadline.com's Nikki Finke say Winfrey belongs more to the world of television than film. She was nominated for a supporting actress Oscar for 1985's The Color Purple, produced and appeared in Beloved in 1998 and was an executive producer of 2009's Precious.

Finke asks in her post if "no one among the philanthropic film bigwigs deserved this award more than her this year? Or is this merely a matter of another of the rich and powerful just throwing their weight around and buying the Governors Award honour for ego feed?"

Sherak said many philanthropists belong to the film academy, but its governors "felt very strongly" about honouring Winfrey."

The Change Up
Genre: Comedy
Director: David Dobkin
Stars: Jason Bateman, Ryan Reynolds, Olivia Wilde

The Change Up, a new comedy starring Ryan Reynolds and Jason Bateman as best friends who switch personalities, feels as though it switched directors midway through.

The first hour is all gross out — baby endangerment, diaper hijinks and pregnant sex kittens — but into the second hour the characters not only start respecting one another, but the audience as well. It's still pretty outrageous stuff, but it has far more heart than the first half and the "I can't believe they just did that" laughs morph into genuine laughs based on the story and characters.

The Devil's Double
Genre: Drama
Director: Lee Tamahori
Stars: Dominic Cooper, Ludivine Sagnier
●●●●

The Devil's Double, a new film about the unbelievable story of a young Iraqi army lieutenant named Latif Yahia who is forced to become Uday Hussein's body double, has a lot to work with: The talent of Dominic Cooper (who does double duty as both the honourable Latif and the crazed, unstable Uday), the fact this insane story is actually true, the cheesy opulence of late '80s Baghdad, and the slick direction of Lee Tamoahori (XXX: State of the Union). Luckily, The Devil's Double doesn't waste these gifts. The film is able to mix style with horror and even humour while using conscience to showcase the brutality of war without preaching.

The Future
Genre: Drama
Director: Miranda July
Stars: Hamish Linklater, Miranda July
●●

The Future is more twee calculation from performance-artist-turned-filmmaker Miranda July; if it improves on her previous work, it's only because its story of a couple stuck in a rutis is a little more relatable. A device involving narration by a sick cat is particularly painful.

ADAM NAYMAN

Viva Riva
Genre: Drama
Director: Djo Munga
Starring: Patsha Bay, Manie Malone
●●●

Director Djo Tunda Wo Munga's Viva Riva is a sweaty, earthy, blistering new crime drama shot and set in the Congo. And while it doesn't offer anything new narratively, the rogues gallery of gangsters and the impossibly erotic (and explicit) sex scenes gel together with style. Patsha Bay plays Angolan anti-hero Riva, a gas thief who hopes to find a better life but instead runs afoul of a crime lord he stole from while bedding a beautiful gangster's moll. Driven by an African beat and moving at a breakneck pace Viva Riva delivers the goods in exotic, exciting ways.

CHRIS ALEXANDER

El Bulli
Genre: Documentary
Director: Gereon Wetzel
Stars: Ferran Adria
●●

About the most fascinating aspect of El Bulli is that the titular Spanish restaurant closes half the year to craft its following seasons' menu.

In the case of this film however, that's where the intrigue ends.

As such, this documentary studies the experimental cooks in the kitchen with the intensity of cold oatmeal. Largely colourless chefs and a threadbare narrative leave El Bulli desperately in need of spice.

STEVE GOW

Ghost Bird
Genre: Documentary
Director: Scott Crocker
●●●●

The search for an elusive, allegedly extinct woodpecker animates Scott Crockers' excellent Ghost Bird — an investigative documentary that's also a portrait of a small town searching for an identity. Brinkley, Ark. gets a shot in the arm after the apparent "rediscovery" of the bird.

The Glee Project: 'Boot camp' for the big league

Up and coming singers duke it out for coveted guest stint on Glee

AMBER RAY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

No one has been named the next star of Glee just yet, but the contestants on The Glee Project already feel like bona fide celebrities.

Earlier this week, the final six singers walked the red carpet at NBC Universal's Television Critics Association party at trendy The Bazaar by Jose Andres in Los Angeles; and each of them looked every bit a star, too.

"It was amazing," contestant Alex Newell gushed during an interview. "We all love to perform, but to get recognized for what we do and what we love to do is amazing. I know that I loved it, and I know that everybody loved to be on a red carpet for the first time too."

The downside of fame via a reality competition, however, is that only one contestant wins the grand prize of a seven-episode guest stint on Glee.

ANDREW ECCLES/OXYGEN MEDIA

The producers admit the process of whittling down the talent pool on a weekly basis was "excruciating."

"Everyone is fit for the show, which made our decision even more difficult," says mentor Zach Woodlee, who also serves as choreographer/producer on Glee.

"We actually had to look at this show as a trial and sort of a boot camp to get people Season 3 ready. So each week it was who is raising the bar. We would sit there and be like, 'Who is making the most progress in this week?' It's who was ready to be at Season 3 quality of our cast on the scripted show."

So is there any chance more than one competitor might wind up walking the halls of McKinley High?

"Ultimately that's up to [Glee creator] Ryan Murphy," mentor Robert J. Ulrich says.

"But they're all wonderful enough to have that chance; and as a casting director, I would keep them in mind for everything else that I do."

The return of the supergroup

When big-name musicians join forces in a band, the result can be 'irresistible'

MEREDITH ENGEL
METRO NEW YORK
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

At first glance, Mick Jagger, New Kids on the Block and Ben Harper may not appear to have much in common, but in fact, they have lately been making music bigger than their own. All three have recently joined supergroups, bands comprising members from other already established acts.

"Music has gotten so compartmentalized and put into genres," says guitarist Dave Stewart, who is best known as the guitarist for the Eurythmics, and now as part of SuperHeavy, a supergroup that includes him, Mick Jagger, Joss Stone, Damian Marley and A.R. Rahman.

"Mick was saying we'll go into the iTunes library as 'unclassifiable.'"

Paul Levinson, professor of communication and media studies at Fordham University in New York, says putting dominant personalities from various groups will always be exciting for audiences.

"Fans very often love one or two members of a group more than the others, and when those members from different groups get together and form one supergroup, it's almost irresistible," he says.

Stewart says one element that makes SuperHeavy work is that the members come from such diverse backgrounds. But how about if you form a supergroup based on acts who are influenced by each other?

Metro spoke with Lou Pearlman, founder of the Backstreet Boys. Currently serving up to 25 years in a Texas prison for running a Ponzi scheme that denied investors of $300 million, he seemed happy to talk.

"Backstreet Boys and New Kids on the Block — that was a marriage made in heaven," he says. "Backstreet Boys tailored themselves to the New Kids' style when I was helping to get it all together. … Not in every group does everybody shine to be, say, the heartthrob, but there's always one, the quirky one, or there's one that's the very musically talented one or the great singer or things like that, and you take those key people, put them together and join it and you forge a new group — and that's how you make a supergroup."

Stewart says there's one important rule when you're a part of a supergroup.

"Everybody's got to check their egos at the door," he says. "That's partly why people like it, because it's like, 'Oh good. I don't have to be in charge.'"

A NEW MUSICAL TERM FOR THE OED

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

It's not exactly a beach read, but I just finished a fascinating book called Reading the OED by Ammon Shea, who spent a year reading all 21,730 pages of the Oxford English Dictionary.

Along the way I learned such wonderful unspellcheck-friendly words as acnestis (the point on your back you can't reach to scratch), cacchinator (a person who laughs too much) and keck (the sound you make just before you vomit). As a writer, I am fond of words — so fond, in fact, that I invented one once. Or at least I helped.

The study of words is called etymology. If you study the origin of the names, that's called onomastics. Exploring the origins of place names is toponymy. And if you're interested in working out the origins of personal names, you're engaged in anthroponomastics.

While working on a radio documentary about the origins of band names, I found that there was no such word for that field of mateotechny (an unprofitable science).

This was unconscionable. Many books have been written about how bands got their names. How could this discipline itself be nameless? I decided to consult some real onomasticians.

I called Dr. Sheila Embleton, a professor of linguistics at York University. She consulted some of her word-wise colleagues around the world, including Mark Hershon, whose team invented such brand names as BlackBerry, OnStar, Swiffer and Febreze. After some conference calls, the learned word boffins came back to me with their conclusions. No, they confirmed, the English language did not feature a word that described the study of the origins of band names.

And yes, they had come up with a solution. Academic investigations into the origins of band names or those adopted for professional purposes by musical performers shall forever be known as bandomynology.

This means that whenever you explain the roots of the name Black Sabbath (taken from the name of a 1963 Boris Karloff film), Green Day (a term describing a day spent smoking joints) or Foo Fighters (from the French feu and relating to a Second World War squadron of UFO-chasing pilots), you're engaged in bandomynology.

The latest online version of the OED is currently being edited. To get bandomynology included, it has to appear in print (like this) and preferably used by other people in academic and/or everyday contexts. Help a guy out, won't you?

Bass wants to get married, have kids

Former pop star still looking for suitable life partner

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Marriage is definitely part of the plan for former N'Sync star Lance Bass.

"I definitely want that. I'm a Southerner. We dream of having the family and the kids, and the parents want grandkids, that's all they care about; 'Give me some grandbabies,'" he tells the Daily Beast.

But first he has to find a boyfriend. While he's been spotted with more than a few men on his arm since his breakup with Reichen Lehmkuhl in 2006, the unidentified beau he's seeing now is the closest he's come to something serious, he insists.

"I haven't had a boyfriend in four years. But now it's getting there."

Transporter star buys Stiller's house

Jason Statham is looking to settle down, and he's found just the place. The Transporter star purchased Ben Stiller's $11.5 million Hollywood Hills home, according to the Hollywood Reporter.

The 10-bedroom Mediterranean-style home with guest house near the Hollywood Bowl was originally listed for $12.5 million in 2009, but Stiller and wife Christine Taylor re-listed it for $1 million less. Statham, who is dating Transformers: Dark of the Moon star Rosie Huntington-Whiteley, recently sold a nearby bachelor pad for $2.7 million, according to the Daily Mail.

You don't always get what you pay for – especially when it comes to insurance

Are You Paying Too Much?

The motto "you get what you pay for" used to be true of most things, but the times, they are changin', and this is no longer true for many things, most notably car insurance. In fact, you could be paying hundreds, or even thousands of dollars more than you should for your coverage.

How is this possible? It is somewhat complicated to explain, but, to sum it up: Insurance companies base their rates on their experience with similar driver profiles and cars. Since no two companies' experiences are exactly the same, it is rare that different companies will give you the same potential insurance premium for your profile and car.

Experience Counts

It has been statistically proven that drivers over 50 years of age have fewer accidents and tickets than the average, and this means that there are more potential savings to be found for more experienced drivers. In fact, some companies actually specialize in serving the mature market, so it's definitely worth comparing rates.

Loyalty May Not Pay

If you are getting a loyalty discount you might be thinking that you are better off staying with your current insurance provider. This might be true, but it's impossible to be certain without doing some research. You just might find that the potential savings far outweigh any loyalty discount being offered.

InsuranceHotline.com is FREE, easy to use, and there is absolutely no obligation. Click, compare, and save today!

Looking good

The pleasure of eating apples — or many other Canadian–grown fruits — quickly turns to disgust if a bite into the fruit reveals a creepy, crawly insect.

Today's farmers have access to safe and effective tools to control insects in their crops. Before insecticides, produce was often sold with holes, scars and tunnels created by insects.

Thanks to plant science technology, our grocery stores are now full of fresh, blemish–free fruits and vegetables. NEWS CANADA

The art of mix & match

PETER ROCKWELL

If you're a fan of single varietal wines (those made with just one grape), it's time for some tough liquid love.

Many (and by many I mean most) wines that display one grape on their label are made from a juice blend.

Put away the torches! There's no need to riot. The laws of almost all wine producing countries allow for the mingling of fruit to balance flavour.

What's typically displayed on the front panel is the primary grape which is usually more than 85 per cent of the union.

The French certainly love the idea of mixing grapes. The wines of Champagne are nearly always a blend of at least two, while winemakers in the Rhone Valley's famed Châteauneuf-du-Pape appellation can have their way with more than 13 to come up with their final cuvée.

The Aussies' have mastered the mega blend with wines like Peter Lehmann's 2008 Layers Red ($16.99 - $19.99) a bright berry mash of shiraz, tempranillo, carignane, mourvèdre and grenache that's red meat ready.

Grill for meat lovers & herbivores

- This weekend, make veggies the main dish & use meat as an accent
- Food Network star Guy Fieri offers a recipe for a grilled romaine salad

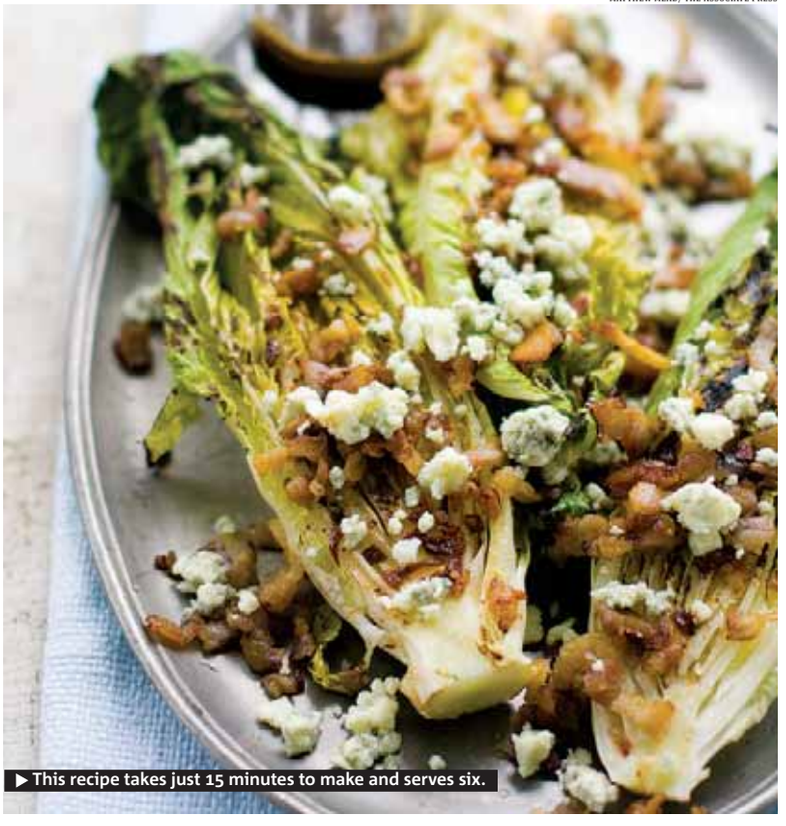
A salad should be chopped in the kitchen, not at the table. That's the advice of Food Network star Guy Fieri, who prefers salads made from bite-size pieces. "A good salad shouldn't require a knife," he said.

However it does require a salad spinner, or some other means of drying the greens. One of Fieri's salad turnoffs is wet lettuce. "It needs to be rinsed and dried," he said.

Here, Fieri offers an intense salad of grilled romaine lettuce.

"The sweet flavour of the romaine comes out when you char it on the grill," he said. "Hit it with the balsamic vinaigrette, bacon, onion and blue cheese and you have a nice balance of sweet and savory flavours."

MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATE PRESS



▶ This recipe takes just 15 minutes to make and serves six.

Preparation:

1. Heat a grill to high. In skillet over high, heat 15 ml (1 tbsp) of olive oil. Add onion and bacon and cook until bacon is crispy, about 10 minutes. Use slotted spoon to transfer onion and bacon to plate. Return skillet to heat and add the balsamic vinegar and 15 ml (1 tbsp) of the olive oil. Bring to a simmer, then cook to reduce for 2 minutes. Remove from heat.

2. Brush romaine with remaining 30 ml (2 tbsp) of olive oil, then season with salt and pepper. Place on grill cut side down and quickly sear until grill marks are visible. Set aside.

3. For each serving, place half a head of romaine cut side up on a plate and drizzle the balsamic dressing. Sprinkle with blue cheese and the bacon and onion mixture, then season with pepper. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients:

- 60 ml (4 tbsp) extra-virgin olive oil, divided
- 175 ml (3/4 cup) finely diced red onion
- 250 g (1/2 pound) bacon, diced into small pieces
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) balsamic vinegar
- 3 romaine lettuce heads, halved lengthwise, cores removed, leafy ends trimmed
- Salt and black pepper
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) crumbled blue cheese

Photos worth a thousand looks

Award-winning press photos currently on display at Ottawa's war museum First Canadian stop on world tour

The World Press Photo 2011 exhibition is a study in contrasts.

More than 175 photos — the work of 54 photographers from around the world, all first published in 2010 — are featured in the exhibit, which runs Aug. 5 to 28 at the Canadian War Museum.

It's the first of four Canadian venues on the show's international tour.

Some of the photos are not for the faint of heart. One disturbing sequence, captured by a Brazilian news photographer, shows a daylight shootout in Rio, complete with dead or dying bodies on the street.

DANIELE TAMAGNI

The photos — winners in the annual World Press Photo contest, the world's largest annual competition for professional photojournalists — can also be seen at worldpressphoto.org.

But viewing them in person lets you experience their full size, up to one metre high by two metres wide, says exhibition supervisor Sander Goudswaard, who adds that walking through the exhibit is different than clicking a mouse.

Lawrie's leaving Las Vegas

MIKE CARLSON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Tampa Bay rookie Robinson Chirinos leaps off of first base Thursday after his game-winning, 12th-inning hit against Toronto.

Jose Bautista bumped back to right field to make room for young third baseman from Langley, B.C.

Canadian third baseman Brett Lawrie will soon make his long-awaited debut with the Toronto Blue Jays.

The team selected his contract from triple-A Las Vegas shortly after the Jays dropped a 7-6, 12-inning decision to the Tampa Bay Rays on Thursday afternoon.

"We wanted to get him some August at-bats to get a little bit more of a read on him, so he deserved to be up here," general manager Alex Anthopoulos said on a conference call.

Outfielder Travis Snider is the odd man out and he was sent back down to the triple-A club.

"It was not an easy decision to make," said Anthopoulos. "It really came down to (rookie right-fielder) Eric Thames and Travis. (Manager John Farrell) and I talked about it at length and player performance is really what it came down to."

Snider has hit .225 in 49 games this season with three home runs and 30 RBIs. Thames is hitting .272 in his first season in the majors with 22 RBIs and five home runs in 46 games.

"When you look at the numbers and the performances to date, they both haven't done all that well in the last week or so," said Anthopoulos. "Eric Thames is probably a little bit ahead of (Snider) in July, but on the season, overall, Eric's played a little bit better than Travis."

"We wanted to find out about Brett Lawrie sooner rather than later."
JAYS GM ALEX ANTHOPOULOUS

Anthopoulos said Thames would move to left field and the newly acquired Colby Rasmus will stay in centre.

The Blue Jays also recalled left-hander Luis Perez from Las Vegas and placed right-hander Carlos Villanueva on the 15-day disabled list with a right forearm strain.

The 21-year-old Lawrie, has hit .353 for Las Vegas this season with 18 home runs and 61 RBIs. The top prospect was acquired from the Milwaukee Brewers last December in the Shaun Marcum trade.

"You know you're not going to be 100 per cent sure. Like I always say, the likelihood with all young players is that they're probably going to have to go back down, but at least you want to do the best you can developmentally to prepare them for being up here," Anthopoulos said.

"Hopefully now with Brett he can be up here to stay for the entire year."

The Blue Jays continue their road trip Friday with the opener of a weekend series against the Baltimore Orioles. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rays rookies rally

The rookies were major contributors in Tampa Bay Thursday, helping the Rays comeback twice in extra innings to beat the Toronto Blue Jays 7-6.

- Brandon Jennings' solo homer in the 10th made it 4-4. Robinson Chirinos tied it again in the 11th with a two-out, pinch-hit single up the middle against Shawn Camp (1-2), then won it with another two-out single in the 12th.
- The Blue Jays took a brief lead in the 10th when Colby Rasmus delivered a RBI double for his biggest hit since being acquired from St. Louis. Reliever Jon Rauch blew a save chance in the bottom half when Jennings hit a leadoff homer.
- Jose Bautista hit his major league-leading 33rd home run for Toronto, a solo shot off Wade Davis that made it 3-3 in the eighth.

Calvillo's big night tough for Argos

Als QB breaks completions mark as his team rolls over Boatmen, who have five straight losses

Dahrran Diedrick scored three touchdowns while Anthony Calvillo broke the all-time CFL completions record as the Montreal Alouettes defeated the Toronto Argonauts 36-23 on Thursday night.

Calvillo added Damon Allen's completions mark to his list of accomplishments, surpassing Allen's record of 5,158 by starting the contest completing nine of his first 10 passes. Earlier this season, Calvillo broke Allen's all-time mark of 394 career TD passes.

Montreal (4-2) earned its first win in three games but improved to 10-2 in its last 12 matchups against Toronto. Calvillo finished 30-of-36 passing for 349 yards and a TD with no picks while tailback Brandon Whitaker ran for 151 yards on 19 carries.

ALOUETTES	ARGONAUTS

The Argos (1-5) lost their fifth straight before a sparse Rogers Centre gathering generously announced at 19,204 with the roof open on a brilliant summer night.

Toronto starter Cleo Lemon, back under centre after missing last week's game in Edmonton with a cracked tooth, finished 25-of-40 passing for 314 yards with two TDs and one interception.

Diedrick put Montreal ahead 27-13 with a one-yard run at 4:19 of the third. After Toronto surrendered a safety later in the quarter, Diedrick put the Alouettes comfortably ahead 36-13 with another one-yard TD run at 2:23 of the fourth.

S.J. Green had Montreal's other touchdown. Sean Whyte added the converts and two field goals. The other points came on a safety.

Spencer Watt and Mike Bradwell scored Toronto's touchdowns, Grant Shaw booted three field goals and two converts.

Since Calvillo became Montreal's starter in 2000, Toronto has had 16 different starting quarterbacks.

Ti-Cats right in cutting Bruce loose

CFL EXTRA POINTS

DAN TOTH
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

Tiger-Cats fans are digging to find a subplot in the Arland Bruce trade from Hamilton to Vancouver this week, but there isn't one.

Yes, Bruce had a penchant for oddball behaviour (the Michael Jackson funeral touchdown tribute comes to mind), but the reality is Bruce is an oft-injured, high-priced pass catcher who hasn't seen the ball much lately, yet Hamilton (3-2) is still on a roll. With a three-game win streak under their belts, the Tabbies can afford to dump Bruce's salary for a third-round Canadian draft pick.

To make matters worse, Bruce bitched to the media about not getting his number called enough, making him that much more expendable. On the other hand, winless Wally Buono, Bruce's new boss in B.C., has to shake up his roster to find a winning formula. For him, Bruce's salary and occasional forays into weird antics are worth the risk.

JOHN WOODS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Friday night's matchup between the Bombers and Eskimos is undoubtedly the game of the year.

The underdog days of summer:

At first glance you might think you're reading your newspaper upside down, with the first-place Edmonton Eskimos (5-0) hosting the first-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers (4-1) in a Friday night showdown. Who could have imagined two months ago that these two squads would break from the starting blocks so quickly — it should be the game of the year so far.

What's most interesting is that two teams that missed the playoffs last season would take vastly different routes to recovery in 2011.

The Eskies made massive off-season coaching staff and player-personnel changes, although the offence is still led by Ricky Ray, who many Eskimos fans wanted to see replaced last winter.

The Bombers chose to essentially stand pat with their staff and roster while praying for QB Buck Pierce to stay healthy.

Backed into a cornerstone:

Conventional wisdom prior to this season was that Calgary's secondary would suffer from the loss of cornerbacks Brandon Browner (NFL) and Dwight Anderson (Montreal). The Stamps are second this season in passing yards allowed, thanks in part to the fine work on the corners by free agent Geoff Tisdale and acquisition Greg Fassitt.

As an added bonus, the Stamps parted ways with two players who took bad penalties while Anderson added to the agony with embarrassing behaviour on the field, a trait he has displayed on a regular basis in Montreal. Last week he was accused of spitting on fans as he left the field in Hamilton.

Back. On course

All eyes on the Tiger

Playing for the first time in nearly three months, Tiger Woods made three birdies and opened with a 2-under 68 in the first round of the Bridgestone Invitational on Thursday. Adam Scott finished atop the leaderboard with an 8-under 62. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
